

It's Never Goodbye

something is different in the sky today something is wrong, nothings okay someone's been missing from my life when i wake i sit in my bed; i tremble- i shake there's a horrible feeling deep down inside i try to escape but there's no where to hide too crippled to fight and too tearless to cry too guilty to laugh, too wingless to fly yet something is different in the sky of tomorrow a slight glimpse of hope, but still the same sorrow someone inspires me now to get out of bed to be quick on my feet, but still think with my head there's a feeling of honor deep within me a feeling of pride that i wear on my sleeve God saw in him the best of the best brains and finesse, a kind heart in his chest so now when i wake i look straight to the sky i tell him i'm sorry i could not say goodbye i tell him i love him and i'm incredibly proud that the king's looking over me from up in the clouds and at night when i lay and i rest my eyes i swear i hear angels say "its never goodbye. the love of two brothers can not ever die.

he'll be there to greet you, when you reach the skies."

by Dan Maida. November, 2008